Corey is a trusted advocate for clients facing complex and high-stakes disputes and crises.

Corey represents domestic and international clients in a wide array of complex litigation, including commercial, shareholder, fraud, professional responsibility and estate litigation, as well as class actions and regulatory matters. He regularly acts in matters involving urgent interlocutory relief and significant financial, operational or reputational risk. Drawing on his previous experience practising in the New York office of an international law firm, Corey brings a cross-border perspective to his practice and is particularly adept at navigating multijurisdictional disputes and investigations. Clients value his strategic judgment, clarity under pressure and ability to distill complex records into focused and persuasive litigation strategies.

As a cybersecurity “breach coach,” Corey also regularly guides clients, including regulated entities and global institutions, through responses to cyber incidents such as ransomware and supply-chain attacks, unauthorized disclosures of personal or sensitive information, regulatory inquiries and privacy and data-related litigation.

Corey is Québec’s sole FraudNet Future member of ICC FraudNet, an invitation-only global network of leading lawyers specializing in fraud, international asset tracing and recovery. He teaches Trial Advocacy and Introduction to U.S. Civil Procedure at the McGill University Faculty of Law. Before beginning his practice as a litigator and cybersecurity lawyer, Corey clerked for the Honourable Justice Morris J. Fish at the Supreme Court of Canada and obtained his Master of Laws from Harvard Law School.
