DAVIES

Charlotte Di Paolo
Student

Office
Montréal

Tel
438.817.9629

Email
cdipaolo@dwpv.com

Charlotte is drawn to the intersection of business and law, and how each influences the other.

Charlotte's interest in practising law stems from a longstanding appreciation for advocacy, drafting and negotiation, which she first developed through Model United Nations.

Education

Marianopolis College

Law School

McGill University

More About Me

What surprised you most about Davies during the interview process?

What stood out to me most during the interview process was the balance between exceptional expertise and genuine approachability. I met individuals who are clearly leaders in their field, yet who were equally generous with their time, insights and encouragement. That combination created an environment that felt both high-performing and deeply supportive, which left a strong impression on me.

Aside from your studies, what else do you like to spend time doing?

I spend a great deal of time skiing in Saint-Sauveur, my hometown, which has always been an important part of my routine. I also enjoy travelling, practising yoga and singing.

Is there an organization that means a lot to you?

An organization that is particularly meaningful to me is Garage à Musique, part of the Fondation du Dr Julien. It operates within a social pediatrics model that brings together professionals from multiple disciplines, including medicine, law, music, education and social work, to support children in a holistic way. I have been involved with the legal branch of the organization throughout law school, and I am especially drawn to how it brings together several of my core interests: law, music and mentorship. The organization's collaborative and community-based approach reflects the kind of impact I hope to have in my own career.