More About Me

What surprised you most about Davies during the interview process?

I was most surprised by the conversational nature of my interviews. It felt very easy to speak to the lawyers at Davies. That sense of comfort helped me articulate my experiences clearly and explain why I would be a strong fit as a summer student. Everyone I spoke with seemed genuinely interested and asked thoughtful (and fun!) questions.

If you could have your own talk show, who would you invite as your first guest?

I would invite David Suzuki as my first guest to discuss environmental stewardship and the future of climate action in Canada. As someone interested in environmental and international law, I admire his work as it shapes how Canadians think about sustainability and our responsibility to future generations. I would want to hear his thoughts on how communities and legal frameworks can work together to address environmental challenges, and how young people can meaningfully contribute to protecting the planet.

What is something about you that we would be surprised to learn?

I spent the first three months after Covid living in the Dominican Republic with my sister, where we learned how to surf. We initially intended to stay for two weeks, but quickly realized that we did not want to leave and ended up extending our trip seven times! We met many lovely people who have become close friends, and we regularly go back to visit over holiday breaks.
